Thought for the month!

April showers bring May flowers! This is correct and as we nourish our thoughts they too will grow. I am looking forward to the result

Searching for purpose...

As these months unfold I find myself searching for the purpose and ways to share my skills. This curve of retirement is one that I was not expecting, but find that I enjoy. The searching is like looking in the mirror of 69 years and seeing what I have learnt, shared and achieved. I find that there is time when not having a time table is very special and something that is very new. I guess that is retirement. I know that my search will end in finding some good fits for the next step. Let me know if that is you.

Here is a story from my heart.

Adoption day number 1. Bring boy child to new grandparents home, all waiting at the door to meet the new family addition. 11:30 pm working on baby vocal chords til 3 a.m., what have I done. Granpa, give him to me, three rocks and sound asleep. From that day forward they always had a special bond.
